Summary

I'm a senior PMM who actually talks to customers every quarter — the win-loss and discovery interviews that keep positioning honest. Across ~8 years in B2B SaaS I've built competitive programs from scratch and led GTM for launches across product, sales, and lifecycle. I adopted AI tools early and use them pragmatically in the GTM workflow. Now I want to bring that to an AI-native company, where keeping claims grounded matters most.

Experience

Tilebridge — Senior Product Marketing Manager

B2B workflow-automation SaaS (Series B) · New York, NY (hybrid) · 2021–present

- Own positioning and messaging for the core workflow-automation platform; rewrote the top-level narrative ahead of a pricing-and-packaging change that sales credited in a quarter where competitive win rate rose ~9 points (directional).
- Led GTM for 4 major launches (2 platform, 2 integrations): briefs, messaging, sales enablement, launch content, and analyst talking points — partnering with product, sales, and lifecycle.
- Built the competitive program from scratch (battlecards, monthly teardown cadence) covering 6 competitors; reduced 'lost on positioning' flags in deal reviews quarter over quarter.
- Run quarterly win-loss and customer-discovery interviews (~40/yr); fed themes into roadmap conversations as an input partner.
- Built an AI-assisted enablement-drafting workflow (I write the brief and edit; the model drafts) that roughly halved first-draft cycle time.

Marlowe Analytics — Product Marketing Manager

Mid-market analytics SaaS · Remote · 2018–2021

- Drove product marketing for two product lines: positioning, launch tiers, pricing pages, and sales enablement.
- Partnered with demand gen on lifecycle/adoption campaigns that lifted activation of a key feature (directional double-digit %).
- Created the company's first win-loss program; ran 60+ interviews over two years.

Birchwood Software — Product Marketing Associate

Early-stage SaaS startup · Remote · 2016–2018

- Supported launches, wrote product content and case studies, and maintained the early competitive library.
